BENEDICT'S SUCCESS.

"What shall I do," cried Benedict, "To cure my lady fair?" With all my love and care and pines, And fill my soul with care. "I've taken her to foreign parts, All drugs I've tried in vain, There's not a doctor in the land Can cure her of her pain. "There's one thing more I mean to try, Indeed, it is no joke, Now from M. STERN & SON, New-York, I buy a SEALSKIN cloak. "Of finest, softest, richest FUR, And give my lady fair, And so he did, when lo! a change Came from the SEALSKIN'S wear! Some magic lurked within the cloak, His wife at once got well, And Benedict, the happy man, The cure to all would tell.
